

As Facebook Shoots Themselves in the Foot, New Social Media Platform Pays You to Post

Facebook's recent announcement over their algorithm shift to keep users in their own little happy bubbles is making its competition, like Steemit, sit up and take notice.

By Matt Agorist - January 15, 2018

Share on Facebook

Tweet on Twitter

tweet

Last week, Facebook announced that they will be keeping all their users in happy little bubbles that won't show them anything controversial, thus ensuring an entire social media platform devoted to pictures of what people are eating for dinner. Illustrating just how unwelcome this change was, after Facebook announced it's changing the algorithm to focus on friends and family while excluding news and information, the